Moscow, October 5. The Weather being yet fine, her Imperial Majesty spends much Time in visiting the principal Monasteries round this Capital; notwithstanding which she has caused the Foreign Ministers to be acquainted with her Resolution of returning to Petersbourg the Beginning of the Winter.

Naples, October 7, N. S. The Secretary at War has sent Orders to all the Governors of the Maritime Towns, to be very watchful of the Corsairs of Barbary, who have been for some Time past meditating a Descent upon our Coasts, and only wait an Opportunity of putting it in Execution; and as we have received Advice that several of their Cruizers are now at Sea, and much interrupt our Commerce, all the Gallies and Warlike Frigates in this Port went out a few Days ago in Search of them. The King has dismissed all the Esclavonian Soldiers which were in his Service, the Time for which they had engaged themselves being expired: Several of them have embarked at Brindisi for their own Country, and the rest have taken the Road for the Ecclesiastical State. Cardinal Spinelli, Archbishop of this City, intends to set out in a few Days for Rome.

Genoa, October 12, N. S. The Troubles of this State seem at present a little quieted.

Serbelloni the Pope's Nuncio.

Leipsick, October 18, N. S. Although the Presence of their Majesties, and their Court, with Numbers of Foreign Nobility, made the Fair very brilliant, it has not turned out so much to the Advantage of the Merchants as was expected.

Dresden, Oct. 20, N. S. On the 17th Instant their Majesties, the Prince Royal and his Spouse, with many of the Nobility, arrived here from Leipsick; and it is said his Majesty proposes to set out soon for Warsaw.
